

Chapter 1: The Lost Child

---

♦ Very Short Question–Answers

Q1. Where was the child going with his parents?

Ans. The child was going to a village fair.

Q2. What attracted the child on the way to the fair?

Ans. Toys, sweets, balloons, flowers, and the snake-charmer.

Q3. Why did the child lag behind his parents?

Ans. He was attracted by different stalls and shows.

Q4. What was the first thing the child asked for at the fair?

Ans. He asked for a toy.

Q5. What did the child see at the flower seller's stall?

Ans. He saw a garland of gulmohar flowers.

Q6. What made the child realise that he was lost?

Ans. He could not see his parents in the crowd.

Q7. What words did the child cry repeatedly after getting lost?

Ans. "I want my mother, I want my father."

Q8. Why did the child refuse sweets and rides later?

Ans. He wanted only his parents.

Q9. Who helped the lost child at the end?

Ans. A kind stranger picked him up.

Q10. What is the main feeling shown by the child after being lost?

Ans. Fear and longing for his parents.

---

♦ Short Question–Answers

Q1. What was the child's first reaction on seeing the fair?

Ans. The child was very excited and fascinated by the fair. He was attracted to the bright colors, toys, balloons, and lively crowd, which made him forget everything else around him.

Q2. How did the child behave when he saw the sweet-stall?

Ans. He ran straight to the sweet-stall and eagerly wanted some treats. He was so eager that he almost forgot to stay near his parents while asking for sweets.

Q3. What caught the child's attention after the sweets?

Ans. The child was drawn to the snake-charmer and the merry-go-round. His curiosity and excitement made him move from one attraction to another, without thinking about his safety.

Q4. How did the child get separated from his parents?

Ans. The child kept stopping to look at different attractions, while his parents walked ahead. The crowd and noise caused confusion, and he got completely lost in the fair.

Q5. How did the child feel when he realised he was lost?

Ans. He felt scared, helpless, and alone. He started crying loudly, calling out desperately for his mother and father, showing how frightened he was.

Q6. What did the child want most after getting lost?

Ans. After getting lost, the child didn't care about toys, sweets, or rides. All he wanted was to be with his parents again, which shows his deep love for them.

Q7. How did the strangers try to help the child?

Ans. Some kind strangers tried to comfort him by offering sweets, toys, and rides. They wanted to cheer him up and take him along safely, but he was still upset.

Q8. Why did the child refuse everything offered by the strangers?

Ans. The child refused the sweets, toys, and rides because nothing could replace his parents. This shows that parental love is far more important than material things.

Q9. What lesson do we learn from the child's experience?

Ans. The story teaches us that parental love and care are more valuable than any toy, sweet, or worldly pleasure. Emotional security is what matters most to a child.

Q10. Why is the story emotionally touching?

Ans. The story is touching because it realistically shows a child's fear and helplessness when lost. It highlights the innocent love and attachment a child has for his parents.

---

♦ Long Question–Answers

Q1. Describe the child's excitement when he first saw the fair.

Ans. The child was thrilled and amazed on seeing the fair for the first time. Everything around him—the colorful stalls, balloons, toys, and sweets—looked magical. He became completely absorbed in exploring each stall and show, forgetting to stay close to his parents. His eyes sparkled with joy and curiosity at every new attraction.

Q2. How did the child react to the sweets and toys at the fair?

Ans. The child was immediately drawn to the sweet-stall and wanted some treats without delay. After that, his attention shifted to the toys and balloons, which made him move from one stall to another. His excitement was so intense that he completely ignored his parents' presence while enjoying everything at the fair.

Q3. Explain how the child got separated from his parents.

Ans. The child kept stopping to admire flowers, toys, and other attractions, while his parents moved ahead. The crowd at the fair made it difficult to keep track of him. Before he realized, he had lost sight of his parents and found himself alone, scared, and helpless in the midst of so many people.

Q4. How did the child feel when he discovered he was lost?

Ans. The child felt terrified, helpless, and anxious. He started crying loudly and calling for his mother and father repeatedly. His fear grew as he wandered through the crowd, realizing that no toy or sweet could replace the safety and comfort of being with his parents.

Q5. How did the child respond to the people who tried to help him?

Ans. Some strangers tried to console the child by offering sweets, toys, and rides. However, he refused all of them because his heart longed only for his parents. This shows that even the most tempting things cannot replace the love and security of family.

Q6. What does the child's behaviour reveal about his feelings towards his parents?

Ans. The child's behaviour shows a deep love and attachment to his parents. Even when surrounded by exciting toys and treats, he could not feel happy without them. His fear and longing highlight how important parents are for a child's emotional security.

Q7. What role does the crowd at the fair play in the story?

Ans. The crowd creates confusion and makes the child's separation from his parents possible. It shows how easily a child can get lost in a busy environment. The crowd also emphasizes the child's vulnerability and the crucial role of parental guidance in such situations.

Q8. How does the story highlight the innocence of childhood?

Ans. The story shows the innocence of childhood through the child's curiosity and fascination with toys and sweets. At the same time, it shows his emotional dependence on his parents. This mix of excitement, fear, and love perfectly reflects the innocent nature of a young child.

Q9. What is the central theme of "The Lost Child"?

Ans. The central theme is the value of parental love and care over material pleasures. It teaches that no toy, sweet, or entertainment can replace the emotional security and comfort of being with one's parents. The story also reminds us of a child's vulnerability and innocence.

Q10. Why is "The Lost Child" considered an emotional and memorable story?

Ans. The story is memorable because it realistically shows a child's fear and helplessness when lost. It touches readers emotionally by highlighting the innocent love a child has for his parents. The child's longing and dependence make the story heartwarming and relatable to everyone.